“The Expectation is Recovery!”
The IL Warm Line
(866) 359-7953

The IL Warm Line is a support line for persons with mental health and/or substance use challenges, their families, friends, and community members. Trained Wellness Support Specialists who personally live out recovery will give support to you while also helping families better understand the recovery process. The Warm Line provides:

• Emotional Support
• Recovery Education
• Self Advocacy Support
• Referrals

Sometimes what is needed most in difficult times is someone to talk with who listens and understands.

• Monday through Friday
  o 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
• From the main menu:
  o Press 2
• TTY: (866) 880-4459
• Staff are skilled at conversing through a Video Relay Service (VRS)
• Interpreters available for hundreds of languages

Crisis Text Line

The Crisis Text Line is for anyone. Trained volunteers respond to messages via text to support people in crisis. The Crisis Text Line:

• Helps people move from a hot moment to a cool calm
• Guides you to create a plan to stay safe and healthy

If you text in your personal life and you are experiencing a crisis, a Crisis Text Line Volunteer is here for you.

• Text 741741
• Anywhere. Anytime (24/7). Anonymously
• Free to users of AT&T, T-Mobile, Sprint, and Verizon

PURPOSE OF THE RECOVERY AND EMPOWERMENT HANDBOOK

This Recovery and Empowerment Handbook is written to:

• Spread the word that there is hope for persons living with mental illnesses! Mental health recovery is real and it is for everyone!

• Make it easier for you to know how to get mental health services.

• Help you make good choices about your mental health care.

• Invite you to give feedback to the Illinois Department of Human Services/Division of Mental Health (IDHS/DMH) about your mental health care, or the care of your child or other family member.

• Empower you with information on your rights, responsibilities and confidentiality as a person receiving mental health services in Illinois.

• Provide information about The Warm Line, a toll-free telephone number you can call to ask questions, get a referral, receive recovery education and emotional support, or get more information on any of the topics referenced within this handbook.
MENTAL HEALTH RECOVERY

As long as there have been mental illnesses there has been recovery. However, persons now have new tools to improve their lives and make a difference in the public mental health system. Together, we are improving opportunities for persons to live productive lives in their communities and recover from mental illnesses once thought to be incurable.

Recovery Envisioned:
A vision is a vivid description of the future or the ideal present that inspires and guides all of our activities. The vision of the IDHS/DMH is that:

The Expectation is Recovery!

All persons with mental illnesses can recover and participate fully in a life in the community.

Having a vision for your own life can help you to achieve great things.

Recovery Defined:
Recovery refers to the process in which persons are able to live, work, learn and participate fully in their communities. For some individuals, recovery is the ability to live a fulfilling and productive life despite a disability. For others, recovery implies the reduction or complete remission of symptoms. Science has shown that having hope plays an integral role in an individual’s recovery.

- New Freedom Commission on Mental Health

A process of change through which individuals improve their health and wellness, live a self-directed life, and strive to reach their full potential.

- Substance Abuse & Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA)

“...I’m on a journey now that is filled with an abundance of hope and expectancy that I will fully reconnect with my new life that lies ahead.”

- Bonnie Gilmore
Recovery Facts:
The body of recovery research is ever growing. Different studies sometimes define recovery in different ways. Studies measure how various factors impact recovery, from one’s environment, employment, staff and individual attitudes, to treatment approaches. Here are some facts the research reveals:

- People can fully recovery from even the most severe forms of mental illness (National Empowerment Center)
- Even studies using very strict criteria before the dawn of the mental health recovery movement showed that most persons with mental illnesses, including severe mental illnesses, experienced full recovery or significant improvement. (American Journal of Psychiatry)
- With the right treatment, and with the support of physicians, caregivers, family and friends, many people improve and lead successful and gratifying lives. (The Center for Reintegration)
- Most persons with mental illnesses want to work and can succeed in competitive employment. (Center for Evidenced Based Practices)
- Combining medication, therapy, and effective treatment in the community helps between 70-90 percent of persons with mental illnesses to have significant reduction of symptoms and improved quality of life. (National Alliance on Mental Illness)
- Recovery, including meaningful roles in social life, school and work, is possible, especially when treatment is started early and individuals play a strong role in their own recovery process (National Alliance on Mental Illness)
- Persons with mental illnesses attain goals including independent living and a satisfying work and family life in the community of their choice. (Association for Psychological Science)
Guiding Principles of Recovery:

• Hope – The belief that recovery is real. Hope is internalized and fostered by others. It is the catalyst of the recovery process.

• Person-Driven – Individuals define their own life goals and design their unique paths towards those goals.

• Many Pathways – Recovery pathways are highly personalized. Recovery is non-linear, characterized by continual growth and occasional setbacks.

• Holistic – Recovery encompasses an individual’s whole life, including mind, body, spirit, and community.

• Peer Support – Peers encourage and engage other peers and provide each other with a vital sense of belonging, supportive relationships, valued roles, and community.

• Relational – Recovery is supported by the presence and involvement of people who believe in the person’s ability to recover; who offer hope, support, and encouragement.

• Culture – Values, traditions, and beliefs are keys in determining a person’s journey and unique pathway to recovery.

• Trauma-Informed – Services and supports should be trauma-informed to foster safety and trust; this promotes choice, empowerment, and collaboration.

• Strengths & Responsibilities – Individuals, families, and communities have strengths and resources that serve as a foundation for recovery. Individuals have a personal responsibility for their own self-care and journeys of recovery. Families have responsibilities to support their loved ones in recovery and stay well themselves. Communities have responsibilities to provide opportunities and resources to address discrimination and to foster social inclusion and recovery.

• Respect – Acceptance and appreciation for people affected by mental health and substance use challenges are crucial to achieve recovery. Self-acceptance, developing a positive and meaningful sense of identity, and regaining belief in one’s self are also important.

- Substance Abuse & Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA)

Science has shown that having hope plays an integral role in an individual’s recovery. Imagine a mental health community where, from their first encounter, persons learn that they can recover! The IDHS/DMH is striving to be a mental health system with hope at its foundation where...

The Expectation is Recovery!
Recovery Lived
Persons from all walks of life experience recovery. We are strengthened when we unite around a shared recovery vision. At the same time, recovery is unique to each person. Here are some ways people have defined recovery for themselves:

- My recovery makes a difference in people’s lives; my recovery matters.
  ~ Richard Neuneker

- Recovery means learning, growing, then living life with enthusiasm and purpose.
  ~ Sonya Lynch

- Finding peace with myself where I am, as I am, and working with what I have to continue to grow! ~ Suzanne F.

- For me, recovery means living life on my own terms through positive and meaningful activities. ~ Tricia H.

- Waking up in the morning and not dreading the day ahead. ~ Anonymous

- Recovery means growth; it means to learn from my “experiences” not from my “mistakes”. It means forgiveness and knowing I can conquer it all. ~ Anonymous

- I can be imperfect and still help others. I can share with my story that there is hope. ~ Amy

- Recovery to me means accepting myself despite my flaws and limitations and living my life filled with hope and compassion ~ Shirley Davis

- Recovery is about a state of mind as well as being able to manage and feel like I have a handle on my life. I can make goals and go after them. I can, and do, believe in myself. ~ Lisa Sinnott

What does recovery mean to you?
Foundational Principles of Wellness

Hope
First, believe you can.
Then, set goals.
Then, keep believing.

Personal Responsibility
Take action toward the goals you set.
Make good choices.

Support
Lean on others for encouragement.
Depend on others to hold you accountable.

Education
Get good information.
Use info to make decisions.

Self-Advocacy
Communicate effectively.
Change methods based on different situations.

Spirituality
Find meaning and purpose in your life. Identify what matters to you the most.

Illinois Department of Human Services / Division of Mental Health—Revised 2017
Recovery and Spirituality

Spirituality is about what matters to you the most, or what brings you a sense of meaning and purpose in life. Many persons use the spiritual practices of their choice to help themselves stay well, or feel better when they are not feeling well. As a result, spirituality has been found to improve both physical and mental health.

You may wish to consider the following questions:

- What gives you the most meaning in your life?
- What helps you get through in difficult times?
- What do you consider the core values that you use to guide you in your life?
- What gives you hope?

Answering these questions has helped many persons to discover or regain a sense of meaning and purpose in life. Spiritual practices can be effective ways to cope with stress. Many persons find them to be a source of comfort and healing. Spirituality can help to motivate an individual’s personal movement along the path of recovery.

Mental health services can become more effective when they honor an individual’s personal sense of self, including spirituality as a potential resource for recovery. Exploring spirituality may help you to recover and participate fully in a life in your community.

Language Matters

The words we use to describe ourselves and others have a great impact on our beliefs about our:

- Abilities as individuals
- Potential to live a fulfilling life despite challenges
- Identities: We are moms, dads, sons, daughters, sisters, brothers, friends, neighbors, professionals, coworkers, students and teachers…

Science has shown that having hope is connected to our ability to recover. Let us then use hopeful words.

“Recovery means to me to live the life God has given us to the fullest, free from mental health barriers and addictions”

~ Monica Hall
USING PERSON-FIRST LANGUAGE WHEN REFERRING TO INDIVIDUALS WITH MENTAL HEALTH SYMPTOMS AND CONDITIONS

</tr>
<tr>
<td>Persons/people/individuals (plural) with mental illnesses (plural)</td>
<td>The mentally ill... OR People with mental illness (singular)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

General Rules By Which to Speak, Write, Respect and Empower

Having vs. Being

To HAVE an illness, or to have the diagnosis of an illness, is notably different than to BE the illness.

When I “have bipolar illness,” I recognize that aspect of myself, much as I recognize that I “have brown eyes.” When I “am bipolar” I take on the identity of BEING bipolar. It becomes me, and I become it.

When we talk about an individual as separate from their mental health condition, we recognize the person first and we acknowledge the person’s power to overcome that condition and live a full life separate from it. I often tell people, “I may have it, but it doesn’t have me!”

Singular vs. Plural

Mental illnesses are diverse; there are many of them and many types of them. To say that “people” (plural) have “mental illness” (singular) misses the breadth and diversity of the nature of mental illnesses.

Therefore, one person has one illness (“person with a mental illness”). More than one person has more than one illness (“persons with mental illnesses”).

To use the singular (illness) when speaking in the plural (people/individuals/persons) reinforces stigma and discrimination. It implies that there is only one mental illness, that it is one size fits all.
RECOVERY SUPPORT

Having support from other persons in recovery may be a key to your own recovery. You can find this support in many places, in your community, within mutual support groups or at your mental health center. Research indicates that peer delivered services generate superior outcomes in terms of engagement with individuals that may be difficult to reach, reduced rates of hospitalization and days spent inpatient, and decreased substance use among those with co-occurring substance use disorders. Research also found that individuals who receive recovery support services experience decreased symptoms of depression and increased hope, self-care, and a sense of well-being. (World Psychiatry, 2012)

The IDHS/DMH Recovery Services Development Group (RSDG)

Within the IDHS/DMH, there have been many individuals employed specifically to utilize their personal or family recovery experiences to help others and improve the system. They work at many different levels of the mental health system, from providing direct support to serving in executive leadership. These staff make up the RSDG.

While the specific branches, or roles, of these positions are diverse, they stem from common roots:

- Be living examples of recovery
- Promote recovery and resilience oriented systems
- Provide current recovery-based training and education
- Develop and provide supportive services
- Encourage individual and family involvement and empowerment at every level

Members of the RSDG promote many exciting programs including:

- Wellness Recovery Action Plan (WRAP®) (p. 12)
- Certified Recovery Support Specialist (CRSS) Credential (p. 15)
- Certified Veteran Support Specialist (CVSS) Credential (p. 16)
- Recovery and Empowerment Statewide Calls (p. 17)
- Regional Recovery Conferences (p. 17)
- Recovery Support Programs (p. 18)
- Treatment Recovery Philosophy and Policy (TRPP) Programs (p. 19)
- Certified Family Partnership Professionals (CFPP) Credential (p. 33)

“Recovery is Forever Growing” - Warren Turner
Wellness Recovery
Action Plan (WRAP®)

A WRAP® can help you in the process of recovery, getting well and staying well, and becoming who you want to be. It can help you make your life the way you want it to be. It can also help you to adapt to any challenges in your life. A WRAP® is a self-directed plan anyone can use as a personal guide to daily living. It focuses on self-help, recovery, and long-term stability. Persons in recovery created WRAP®. For more information on WRAP®, visit www.mentalhealthrecovery.com

A WRAP® begins with an individual Wellness Toolbox, filled with simple, safe ideas to help you feel good, stay well, and even feel better when the going is hard.

Here are some ideas that others have put in their Wellness Toolboxes:

Family time - Scrap-booking - Walking
Martial arts - Journaling - Prayer - Poetry
Quilting - Basketball - Calling a friend

What might you put in your Wellness Toolbox?

A WRAP® can also help you identify:

• What you are like at your best;
• What you need to do every day to stay well;
• Things that may upset you (triggers) and what you can do if these things happen;
• Early warning signs that you are not feeling well and things you can do to help yourself feel better;
• Signs that things are getting worse and things you can do to make the situation better;
• Signs that you may be experiencing a crisis and things your supporters can do in that situation; and
• What to do after a crisis has ended to help you recover your wellness.
WRAP® is universal. This means that it can be used for any aspect of life. Here are some ways that others have used WRAP®:

- Work - Marriage - Smoking Cessation
- Weight Management - Chronic Illness - Family Conflict
- Fitness - Healthy Eating - Daily Living Chores
- Substance Abuse - Getting Through the Holidays

What ways might you use your WRAP®?

The WRAP® Workbook for Kids can help to guide children through this process as well. WRAP® is different from Wrap-Around, which is a mental health systems approach to supporting children (p. 34).

WRAP® is recognized as an evidence based practice by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA). This means that research has shown WRAP® to be a particularly valuable tool in mental health recovery.

All aspects of participation in WRAP® are voluntary.

If you wish to become a WRAP® class facilitator, you will need to complete the following steps:

1) Attend a WRAP® class and develop your own WRAP® plan
3) Apply for WRAP® Facilitator Training. The regional Recovery Support Specialist can help you with this process.

Certified Recovery Support Specialist (CRSS) Credential

Professionals with the Certified Recovery Support Specialist (CRSS) credential are employed specifically to use their personal recovery experiences to facilitate and support the recoveries of others and to help shape the mental health system. The CRSS credential verifies competence in:

- Advocacy
- Professional Responsibility
- Mentoring
- Recovery Support

In order to obtain the CRSS credential individuals apply with the Illinois Certification Board and show completion of the following requirements:

- 100 clock hours of mental health recovery education
- 2000 hours supervised mental health recovery support work experience (volunteer or paid)
- 100 hours documented supervision
- CRSS Exam
- Agreement to the Statement of Self-Disclosure
- Commitment to the CRSS Code of Ethics

Certified Recovery Support Specialist for Employment (CRSS-E) Credential

The specialty credential for individuals whose work is focused on employment is the CRSS-Employment (CRSS-E). In order to obtain the CRSS-E credential, individuals must:

- Have the CRSS and be current and in good standing with the Illinois Certification Board
- Successfully complete Dartmouth IPS Supported Employment Practitioner Skills Training
- Have 1000 hours qualified work experience and/or internship (minimally must have primary responsibility for providing recovery support services specific to IPS employment supports for an individual and/or group of individuals with mental health conditions)
- Have 25 hours documented supervised practical experience
The Certified Veteran Support Specialist (CVSS) is a credential for service members, veterans, and their families who use their life experiences as an example of recovery and resiliency. Individuals with the CVSS credential gain the competencies to advocate for the needs of veterans as well as teach them how to advocate for themselves, assist veterans to navigate service and support systems, and help veterans identify and achieve personal recovery goals. The CVSS credential verifies competence in:

- Advocacy
- Professional Responsibility
- Mentoring
- Health & Wellness
- Reintegration
- Systems Navigation

In order to obtain the CVSS credential individuals apply with the Illinois Certification Board and show completion of the following requirements:

- 100 clock hours of training and education in veteran recovery support services
- 2000 hours supervised veteran recovery support work experience (volunteer or paid)
- 100 hours documented supervision
- CVSS Exam
- Commitment to the CRSS Code of Ethics

Recovery and Empowerment Statewide Call

The Recovery Services Development Group (RSDG) regularly hosts a toll-free telephone call for persons receiving services in Illinois.

- A half hour presentation on a topic relevant to recovery.
- A half hour for questions and answers with the RSDG and community speakers.
- An empowering opportunity to connect with others on the recovery journey.

Previous topics have included:

- Physical Health
- Financial Goals
- Relationships
- Spirituality and Community

All educational materials from previous calls can be accessed online. Many more relevant topics are to be scheduled in the future. For more information:

- Visit: www.illinoismentalhealthcollaborative.com

Regional Recovery Conferences

Each year, regional recovery conferences are hosted throughout the state of Illinois. These conferences provide hope, education and empowerment to persons participating in mental health services. While each recovery conference is unique, they are all built upon the following concepts:

- Education: Topics and speakers chosen by persons in recovery
- Inspiration: Real life stories of recovery
- Advocacy: Learning to communicate effectively for positive change
- Networking: Connecting with persons in recovery from across the region
- Empowerment: A process driven by persons in recovery, from planning to completion

For more information on Regional Recovery Conferences, contact your RSDG Member (p. 10)
Recovery Support Programs in Illinois
Community Mental Health Centers

The exciting field of recovery support is growing in Illinois!

- Recovery Support: The process of giving and receiving non-clinical assistance to help facilitate the process of recovery; recovery support is provided by individuals with lived experience in recovery.

- Recovery Support Specialist: A person with lived experience in recovery who helps others on their recovery journeys in a formal manner and is paid for his/her services.

- Recovery Support Services: Services which are delivered through organizations and through the specialized roles of paid recovery support specialists.

Recovery Support Specialists provide various services within the mental health system, such as:

1) Lead Recovery Classes: Recovery Support Specialists teach classes. Classes vary from Wellness Recovery Action Plan (WRAP®) to life skills classes and recovery support groups.

2) Provide Individual and Group Recovery Support and Advocacy: Sometimes this individual support is provided in programs such as Psychosocial Rehabilitation. Sometimes they are provided as part of a Community Support or Assertive Community Treatment program.

3) Mentor Persons in a Recovery Drop-In Center: Drop-in centers are informal places individuals can come to give and find support. Classes and groups are offered by Recovery Support Specialists and there are also opportunities for individuals to develop their own shared interest groups and activities.

One way an individual may become qualified to provide professional recovery support services is by attaining the Certified Recovery Support Specialist (CRSS) credential. If you are interested in starting a Recovery Support program, you may wish to speak to an IDHS/DMH Recovery Support Specialist (p. 10).

“Recovery means reestablishment of one’s control over themselves” ~ Dorian M.
IDHS/DMH Operated Psychiatric Hospitals

The exciting field of recovery has expanded within Illinois’ state operated psychiatric hospitals through the Treatment Recovery Philosophy and Policy (TRPP) programs. Individuals receiving services at one of the IDHS/DMH operated psychiatric hospitals have unique opportunities for participation.

Recovery Stories

- Hear real life stories of recovery
- Learn strategies for staying well
- Be inspired
- Think about sharing your story

Platinum Ambassadors

- Identify staff who go above and beyond to:
  - Help you see the potential to recover
  - Help you navigate a difficult situation
  - Improve your environment and outlook
- Ask for a platinum ambassadors nomination form
- Submit form for review

Recovery Rounds

- Volunteer to participate with staff
- Ask others questions about quality of care
- Help the hospital obtain meaningful input

Additionally, each of the IDHS/DMH operated psychiatric hospitals designs special projects to further the recovery vision. Individuals receiving services are encouraged to ask a staff person how to get involved in any of these opportunities.

“...Recovery is being able to learn and use independent living skills as my road to recovery continues”

- Marty
Work and Recovery

Work may be an important part of your recovery journey. Most persons with mental health challenges want to work. Those who do work report that they gain a greater sense of dignity, control over symptoms and quality of life. Some things to consider for returning to work include:

- Think about the kind of work you want
- Set job-related goals daily and work towards them
- Search for jobs using a variety of methods such as online sites, newspaper classifieds, and employment centers
- Get help writing your resume or have someone review it for errors
- Consider customizing your resume for the type of job
- Build a network of contacts and ask them to let you know of job openings
- Practice interviewing with someone
- Keep a job search notebook that lists when and where you applied for a job and include the website and hiring person’s contact info
- Follow up soon after an interview with a thank you note in writing - either by email or postal mail

An employment specialist may have more tips and tools for getting a job. Think about asking friends and family what worked for them.

Individual Placement and Support

The best employment support programs practice the following approaches from the Individual Placement and Support (IPS) model:

• No one is excluded who wants to work

• The job search starts soon after you express interest

• Those who are supporting you to get a job partner with your mental health services to help you succeed

• You can find competitive employment, based on your preferences, in the community

• Information about how work will affect your benefits is provided

• Employment Specialists meet with employers to learn about business needs and job openings

• Choices and decisions about work and support are based on your preferences, strengths, and experiences

• You can receive support related to your job for as long as you need it

Living Independently

Good housing is critical to good mental health. Finding and keeping safe, affordable housing may be an important step in your recovery journey.

Some things to consider when seeking housing include:

Safe. Living in a safe building that’s in a safe neighborhood will help you feel more secure and more able to focus on your recovery.

Affordable. Having to pay more than you can afford may make it hard to meet needs like health care, food or clothing.

Accessible. If you have a mental illness and a physical disability you may need special housing features.

Discrimination-free. According to the Fair Housing Act, landlords and property owners cannot refuse to rent to you because of a disability.

Independence. Different types of housing can offer different levels of independence and care, so it’s important to determine which type would work best for you.

Types of Housing

It is best to choose a type of housing that fits your individual needs so your recovery can be your priority.

Supervised Group Housing: In supervised residential living, trained staff members are present 24/7 to provide care and assistance with things like medication, daily living skills, meals, paying bills, transportation and treatment management.

Supportive Housing: Supportive housing provides limited assistance. The residents in supportive housing live much more independently and have someone to call and resources available to them if a problem does arise.

Rental Housing: Rent can be paid for in full by the individual or subsidized by a third party, such as the government or a non-profit agency.

- Section 8: The Housing Choice Voucher Program (Section 8) is the federal government’s program for assisting low-income families, older adults and people with disabilities. For more information, contact your local Public Housing Agency.

- Section 811: The Supportive Housing for People with Disabilities Program (Section 811) is a federal program dedicated to subsidizing rental housing for adults with disabilities who have very or extremely low incomes.

Home Ownership: Being a homeowner is a wonderful goal to consider and plan for. The Federal Housing Administration has a program that insures the mortgages of many first-time homebuyers.
Permanent Supportive Housing (PSH)

Permanent Supportive Housing (PSH) is designed to assist persons living with mental illnesses to access affordable housing and cross the bridge to independent living. PSH promotes and stabilizes recovery by providing decent, safe and affordable housing opportunities linked with community support services.

Mental health services are available when you need them, but are not a condition of living in the housing unit. PSH is:

- Permanent: You sign a document called a lease. This is the same piece of paper anyone who rents a house or apartment signs. When you have a lease, you cannot be kicked out just because you do not participate in treatment or other mental health services. You can keep your housing as long as you pay your rent, be a responsible neighbor, keep your space clean, and make sure no damage is done.

- Supportive: Staff can help provide support moving in, setting and achieving goals, meeting responsibilities, learning job skills and finding work, budgeting money, independent living skills, as well as finding mental health, medical, and substance use services if you want this help.

- Housing: A house or apartment that meets your needs in the community

Spaces are limited and only become available as resources permit. If you are interested, please speak to your service provider

Illinois Network of Centers for Independent Living

A Center for Independent Living (CIL) is a non-residential, community based organization, directed and managed by persons with disabilities. A CIL is dedicated to the philosophy that all people with disabilities have the right and the responsibility to make choices to control the direction of their lives and participate fully and equally in their communities.

Integrated Primary and Behavioral Healthcare

Integrated healthcare is an approach that helps primary care providers (PCP), such as a family doctor, work together with mental health providers. All of an individual’s health conditions are looked at together to gain a better picture of a person’s overall health. The goal is to help persons with mental health challenges to live longer, healthier lives.

Examples of integrated care include:

• Providing mental health and primary health services in the same location

• Teams of primary and mental health care professionals working together with the same persons

• Mental health and primary care providers cross-training one another

• Coordination of primary and mental healthcare through a process known as an integrated health home. This is actually not a home at all, at least not in the sense that most people understand the word. It is a provider that coordinates care, helps find services, and authorizes them based on your level of need. This leads to a more holistic and efficient approach to health care.

Integrated healthcare helps professionals with different roles to put the individuals they serve first. A few of the potential benefits of this approach include fewer repeated medical tests and forms, better knowledge of potential drug interactions, and more convenient location of healthcare professionals together. For more information about integrated healthcare in Illinois, you may visit:

• www.illinois.gov/hfs (search using the words “integrated care”)
Co-Occurring Mental Health and Substance Use Conditions

Mental health and substance use conditions often co-occur. In other words, individuals with mental health conditions often experience substance use conditions at the same time and vice versa.

- As many as 50% of people with mental illnesses develop substance use problems at some point in their lives
- Approximately 7.9 million adults experience both a mental health and substance use disorder

Specialized integrated treatment is available in certain locations in Illinois. For more information, contact:

TRAUMA-INFORMED RECOVERY

Trauma is an individual experience. Trauma is defined more by a person’s reaction or to an event than by the event itself. When the person’s ability to cope is challenged during or after a single event or long-term distressing experiences, the individual may be experiencing a trauma response. When an individual experiences a threat to their life, well-being, or that of a caregiver or family member, this may be experienced as a trauma. This threat may be an actual threat or what the person believes is a threat. As with mental health recovery, trauma recovery will be and look different for everyone.

Key principles of Trauma-Informed Recovery:

• Empowerment: Recognize and validate strengths
• Voice and Choice: Hear diverse experiences; honor choices
• Resilience: Believe in the ability to heal and recover from trauma
• Change Process: Embrace recovery as intentional and ongoing
• Peer Support: Give and receive support from others with similar experiences
• Collaboration and Mutuality: Pursue healthy relationships that share decision-making
• Inclusiveness and Shared Purpose: Recognize that everyone has a role to play in recovery; one does not have to be a therapist to be therapeutic
• Safety: Identify people and places that promote a sense of safety
• Trustworthiness and Transparency: Build and maintain trust with others; share challenges; and ask for accountability when needed
• Cultural, Historical, and Gender Issues: Move past stereotypes, find gender based services, and honor the healing value of cultural traditions

Key elements of Trauma-Informed Recovery Services:

• Realizing that trauma is common among people in recovery
• Recognizing how trauma affects all individuals
• Responding by putting this information into practice

“Recovery means being able to play with my grandchildren... I am a new person.”

~ Pam Perry
As with individuals of any age, children and youth experience wellness on a continuum. It may be easy for parents to identify their child’s physical needs: nutritious food, warm clothes when it’s cold, bedtime at a reasonable hour. However, a child’s mental and emotional needs may not be as obvious. According to Mental Health America, good mental health allows children to think clearly, develop socially and learn new skills. Additionally, good friends and encouraging words from adults are all important for helping children develop self-confidence, healthy self-esteem, and a healthy emotional outlook on life.

Basics for a child’s good mental health:
- Unconditional love from family
- Self-confidence and high self-esteem
- The opportunity to play with other children
- Encouraging teachers and supportive caretakers
- Safe and secure surroundings
- Appropriate guidance and discipline

Nurture children’s confidence and self-esteem:
- Praise Them - Encouraging children’s first steps or their ability to learn a new game helps them develop a desire to explore and learn about their surroundings. Allow children to explore and play in a safe area where they cannot get hurt. Assure them by smiling and talking to them often. Be an active participant in their activities. Your attention helps build their self-confidence and self-esteem.
- Set Realistic Goals - Young children need realistic goals that match their ambitions with their abilities. With your help, older children can choose activities that test their abilities and increase their self-confidence.
- Be Honest - Do not hide your failures from your children. It is important for them to know that we all make mistakes. It can be very reassuring to know that adults are not perfect.
- Avoid Sarcastic Remarks - If a child loses a game or fails a test, find out how he or she feels about the situation. Children may get discouraged and need a pep talk. Later, when they are ready, talk and offer assurance.
- Encourage Children - To not only strive to do their best, but also to enjoy the process. Trying new activities teaches children about teamwork, self-esteem and new skills.
Risk and Protective Factors:
Every child, youth and family experiences a combination of risk and protective factors in life. According to the Child Welfare Information Gateway, risk factors refer to the stressful conditions, events, or circumstances that reduce a family’s chances for good outcomes and may include:

- Child abuse and neglect
- Family disharmony, instability or breakup
- Harsh or inconsistent discipline

Protective factors are conditions or attributes of individuals, families, communities, or the larger society that lessen risk, promote healthy development and wellbeing and increase a family’s chances for good outcomes. Put simply, protective factors are the strengths that help to buffer and support families at risk and may include:

- Family harmony and stability
- Supportive parenting
- Involvement with a caring adult

- Child Welfare Information Gateway

When to seek help
Parents and family members are usually the first to notice if a child has problems with emotions or behavior. Your observations along with those of teachers and other caregivers may lead you to seek help for your child. If you suspect a problem or have questions, consult your pediatrician or contact a mental health professional.
Core Values of the Child and Adolescent Mental Health System
The following values and principles are summarized in the system of care philosophy:

- Family driven and youth guided
- Home and community based
- Strengths based and individualized
- Culturally and linguistically competent
- Coordinated across systems and services
- Connected to natural helping networks
- Evidence-based, data-driven and outcome oriented
- Trauma-informed

Family Driven Care
Family-driven means families have a primary decision-making role in the care of their own children as well as the policies and procedures governing care for all children in their communities, states, tribes, territories, and nation. This includes:

- Choosing supports, services, and providers
- Setting goals
- Designing and implementing programs
- Monitoring outcomes
- Partnering in funding decisions
- Determining the effectiveness of all efforts to promote the mental health and wellbeing of children and youth.

- National Federation of Families for Children’s Mental Health
Family Run Organizations
The foundation of a family-run organization consists of four essential elements:

- Mission: Dedicated to supporting families caring for a child or youth with mental, emotional, behavioral or substance abuse needs

- Governance: Board of the organization is comprised of at least 50% family members with “lived experience”

- Personnel: Executive Director and all staff members providing support are family members

- Family voice: Promotes family voice at all levels of the organization and system

Families with “lived experience” are defined as parents, relatives, or foster families who are or have been the primary caregiver for a child with mental health, emotional, behavioral or substance abuse needs.

- Family Run Executive Director Leadership Association (FREDLA)

For more information on Illinois Family Run Organizations, contact The Alliance (p. 28)

Youth Guided
Youth-guided means young people have the right to be empowered, educated, and given a decision-making role in the care of their own lives as well as the policies and procedures governing the care of all youth in the community, state, and nation.

Measuring Outcomes
How do we know children and adolescents are doing better and getting their clinical needs met? There are currently five different clinical measures being utilized to identify if the interventions being provided are resulting in positive outcomes and progress towards goals. Progress is currently measured on a quarterly basis using tools such as:

- Ohio Scale: Completed by the clinician
- Columbia Scale: Parent Version - Completed by the parent
- Columbia Scale: Youth Version - Completed by youth age 10 and older
- Devereau Early Childhood Assessment (DECA): Completed by parent and clinician for children ages 0-5
- Goal Attainment Scale

Both parents and youth should expect to see the scores from the quarterly assessment and be informed as to how the scores impact the family’s progress toward their treatment goals.

The Wrap-Around Approach to Services
In the wrap-around approach, the child’s unique personal needs drive planning and services. It is a value base and commitment to create services “one child at a time” that include youth with complex needs in the community and to restore family relationships. Wrap-around is not the same as WRAP® (p. 12).
Certified Family Partnership Professional (CFPP) Credential

Certified Family Partnership Professionals (CFPP) are individuals trained to incorporate their unique life experiences gained through parenting a child whose emotional and/or behavioral challenges required accessing resources, services and supports from multiple child-serving systems as they progressed toward achievement of the family’s goals. The CFPP credential verifies competence in:

- Advocacy
- Professional Responsibility
- Mentoring
- Family Support
- Child and Adolescent Development

  o Select “Individuals and Families”
  o Select “Find a Mental Health Provider”

IDHS/DMH funded mental health centers offer a wide variety of services. The best fit of services is found when the person’s goals and needs are the basis for clinical support. This takes teamwork. The more informed you are, the better equipped you will be to work with your provider to determine your own care based on what is available in your area. In some areas, there may be more or less services available than those described on the following chart. These are descriptions of some key services.

Key IDHS/DMH Services

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Service</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Community Support</td>
<td>This is support provided more in the community than at the mental health center. It can help you put skills you have learned into practice so you can live, work, learn and participate fully in your own community.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Psychosocial Rehabilitation</td>
<td>This service is provided in your mental health center building. You can think of PSR as a classroom for building skills to help you live, work, learn, and participate fully in your community.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Case Management</td>
<td>Case management can connect you with the services you may need. This can be especially helpful when you are moving from a hospital or nursing home into the community. Mental health center staff can help you to find medical, child welfare, employment and other services you might need to live independently.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Therapy and Counseling</td>
<td>This service involves treatment by a clinician. He/she may help you to make changes in your feelings, thoughts, or actions. You may meet with the therapist as an individual, in a group or with your family depending on your needs.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Crisis Intervention</td>
<td>If you are experiencing a mental health crisis, your mental health center can help you to reduce symptoms, stabilize, and get back to feeling safe. For more information on what you can do to prevent and prepare for a crisis, see pages 39 -43.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Assertive Community Treatment</td>
<td>This intense service can help you if you are at a point where you have a high risk of frequent hospitalizations, jail or homelessness. ACT is designed to get you back on track toward your goals while staying in the community and to help you reach a less intense level of service.</td>

“Recovery is knowing it’s never too late!”

~ Mark Freeman
Mental Health Services for the Deaf, Hard of Hearing, Late-Deafened, and DeafBlind Communities

The IDHS/DMH requires their funded community agencies to provide reasonable accommodations to individuals with hearing loss, including communication access.

Reasonable accommodations can include American Sign Language (ASL) and/or deaf interpreters, tactile signing, printed materials in large-print, FM system or personal amplifier, Communication Access RealTime Translation (CART), and/or other accommodations.

Several community mental health centers are certified to operate specialized residential programs, Assertive Community Treatment (ACT) teams, Psychosocial Rehabilitation (PSR), Wellness Recovery Action Plan (WRAP®), Individual Placement and Support (IPS), and psychiatric outpatient services for persons with hearing loss.

One of IDHS/DMH’s inpatient psychiatric hospitals, Chicago Read Mental Health Center, operates a specialized inpatient psychiatric unit that is fully accessible to persons with hearing loss.

As with all mental health services, an individualized approach is best. IDHS/DMH has a Statewide Coordinator for Deaf and Hard of Hearing who can assist with accessing mental health services. Additionally, the Coordinator can provide training, technical assistance, and education related to mental health and persons with hearing loss.

Service Authorization

Some Medicaid-covered services must be authorized. This means that your mental health center needs to get approval before providing you with certain services. Here is how it works:

1) Your mental health center works with you to find a service that fits your goals and needs.
2) The mental health center tells the authorizing entity that it wants to provide the chosen service to you.
3) The authorizing entity confirms that the request is based on your goals and needs and that you have been involved in the decision. They make sure that the service meets medical necessity.
4) In most cases, the authorizing entity authorizes the services to be provided. Additional re-authorization may be required later.
5) In other cases, the authorizing entity may work with your center to find a service that better meets your goals and needs.
6) You and/or your mental health center can ask questions, complain, or request an appeal if your needs are not met. The goal is not to deny service, but to work together to find the best fit of services with your help.

With limited state funding, the IDHS/DMH aims to support mental health services for persons with financial need. This need is determined by the person’s household size and monthly household income. When any parts of your mental health services are paid for by the IDHS/DMH, your personal health information is shared with the IDHS/DMH. This helps to make sure that the IDHS/DMH is paying for services based on real needs in the community.
CHOICES IN TREATMENT

Your doctor and treatment team must take the lead from you in all phases of service delivery in order to best achieve the recovery vision. Sometimes you may decide to involve family and others with a direct interest in your well-being with your care. You are encouraged to participate in shaping your own treatment.

Treatment Plan

One important way for you to shape your treatment is to get involved in creating and updating your own treatment plan. This plan should be based on your hopes and dreams. You can work with your treatment team to think of goals that will help you reach those hopes and dreams and overcome problems that may be keeping you from them for now.

Treatment plans are most effective when they are:

- Written in your own words
- Built upon your strengths
- The result of real teamwork between you and your treatment team
- Based on your choice within options that are medically appropriate

Here are some questions that may help you to shape your treatment plan:

- How will this treatment help me reach my goals?
- How does this treatment plan help me to live, work, learn and participate in life more fully in the community?
- What kinds of things do I need to do on my own, outside of treatment?
- How long can I expect that I will be in this level of treatment?
- What are the advantages and disadvantages of this particular service?
- What can we do if I have a setback?
- Will it cost me anything to follow this treatment plan?
Prepare for Doctor Appointments

Doctor appointments are opportunities for you to exercise choice in your treatment. When you meet with a doctor, there are two experts in the room. The doctor is an expert in his/her field of medicine. You are the expert on YOU! You may have limited time to share all your thoughts and concerns about medication and other issues. Here are some things you can do to make the most of your time with the doctor:

- Write down what you want to talk to the doctor about in advance, such as positive results, changes in symptoms, medication decreases or increases, side effects, trying a new treatment, and your questions
- Practice what you would like to say before your appointment
- Bring a friend, family member, or other support person with you
- Research psychiatric medications through current books and the internet. Write down questions you have

Your relationship with the doctor is a two-way street that requires honest and open communication. Preparing ahead of time for appointments will help you and your doctor to work together as a team.

Here are some questions you may want to ask your doctor about your medications:

- What symptoms does the medication treat?
- How long will it take to notice a change in how I feel?
- When and how often will I take the medication?
- What are the short term and long term effects?
- Are there any side effects that I should report right away?
- What can I do to avoid the side effects?
- What interactions, life food or other medications, should I be concerned about?
- What do I do if I want to stop taking the medication?
1. What is a mental health crisis?
A crisis is any situation in which your behaviors put you at risk of hurting yourself or others and/or when you are not able to resolve the situation with the skills and resources available. A mental health crisis is as important to address as any health crisis. It may be difficult to predict when a crisis will happen. While there may be triggers and signs, a crisis can occur without warning. It can occur even when you have followed your treatment or crisis prevention plan and used techniques you have learned on your recovery journey.

2. How do you know if you are in crisis?
Everyone experiences a crisis in their own way. You might feel that your mental health has been steadily deteriorating for some time, or perhaps something is happening in your life that is shaking your stability. You might have a good idea what is likely to trigger a crisis for you, or you might not know what is causing your feelings. But whatever your situation, if you start to feel unable to cope, or to keep yourself safe, it is important to ask for help.

3. What do you do if you or a family member are having a mental health crisis?

   - Call your local mental health center’s crisis line
   - Help your child by calling the CARES line at (800) 345-9049, TTY: (866) 794-0374
   - Call the 24-hour National Suicide Prevention Lifeline at (800) 273-8255. Caring staff will connect you with the closest possible crisis center in your area
   - Text the 24-hour Crisis Text Line at 741741. A trained volunteer will help you move from a hot moment to a cool calm and guide you in developing a plan to stay safe and healthy.
   - Go to your nearest hospital emergency room
   - Call 911

You may never need to use a crisis line or a crisis plan. Preparing for a crisis does not mean that one will occur. However, it is wise to prepare for a crisis ahead of time so that you have support and a plan if you ever need them. You may write your mental health center crisis phone number below:

   (___) ____ — ____

You may also write this number on the card located in the front of this handbook.
You have access to a number of other resources to help you to prevent and prepare for a crisis:

- Call the Warm Line at (866) 359-7953 to talk with a Wellness Support Specialist.
- Ask your mental health center or the Warm Line about creating your own Wellness Recovery Action Plan (WRAP*) or Crisis Plan.
- Family and friends can often be wonderful support persons to help you prevent a crisis.
- Create a Psychiatric Advance Directive (p. 44)

Your Crisis Plan

You can have a say in how you are helped, and by whom, if you experience a crisis. You can share what has worked and not worked for you in the past. This is best done when you are feeling well. A crisis plan is not the same as a Wellness Recovery Action Plan (WRAP*). WRAP* includes a section for your crisis plan, and it also has many other components which help you live well every day (p. 12). A crisis plan is also not the same as a Psychiatric Advance Directive. A Psychiatric Advance Directive is a legal document (p. 45).

Create a Psychiatric Advance Directive
A Psychiatric Advance Directive serves a similar purpose as a crisis plan, but is a legal document created when a person is well. It describes what kind of mental health treatment you allow and who can make decisions about your care if you become unable to. Only you can decide if you want to create an advance directive and what it contains. There are two types:

A Declaration for Mental Health Treatment includes your preferences about:

- Medication
- Hospitalization
- Electroconvulsive Therapy (ECT)
- Your Attorney in Fact (any person chosen by you who can view your mental health records and make decisions about your care on your behalf)

A Power of Attorney for Health Care:

- Is any person chosen by you in advance.
- Can direct both your mental health treatment and other medical care.

Psychiatric Advance Directives are legal documents, so you should get advice from people who know a lot about them. It is important to be well informed about the process and involve persons you can trust. Psychiatric Advance Directives are voluntary. Free advice and assistance is available through:

Develop a Post Crisis Plan

Just as recovering from major illnesses takes time, it takes time to recover from a mental health crisis. You may find that assistance and support can be gradually reduced as you feel better. Developing a post crisis plan may help you feel more confident as you move past the crisis and continue your recovery journey.

Things I can do for myself:

Evaluate Care

After you have been in treatment, it is a good idea to rate your experience. You may work better with some staff persons than you do with others. Having a good relationship with your treatment team can make a difference in your recovery. You may ask yourself:

• Are we working toward my goals?
• Do they do things for me or help me learn to do things for myself?
• Do they make and stick to commitments?
• Do they help me to build on my strengths?
• Do I feel comfortable talking about difficult issues with them?
• Are they available when I am in a crisis?
• How do they handle it when we disagree?

Sharing your thoughts on these questions with your staff can help them to better meet your needs. You may ask your treatment team about opportunities for you to evaluate your care, such as satisfaction surveys. Your feedback helps them to provide better care.
The IDHS/DMH also wants to hear feedback from you about your experiences with the mental health system. Your input is sought in a variety of ways, including the following:

- IDHS/DMH regional forums or advisory councils (Contact your Region Recovery Support Specialist, p. 10)
- Recovery and Empowerment Statewide Calls (p. 17)
- Annual IDHS/DMH regional recovery conferences and conference planning committees (p. 17)

Complaints Process

If you are unhappy with your mental health care, or the care of a family member, you can voice your concerns by submitting a complaint to the IDHS/DMH. A complaint about a violation of rights is also known as a grievance. You can call or write the IDHS/DMH to discuss the concerns you have about your mental health services.

The IDHS/DMH take all complaints seriously. Your feedback is important to help maintain quality mental health services.
RIGHTS, RESPONSIBILITIES AND CONFIDENTIALITY

Rights

You are a partner in your mental health care. Illinois law protects your rights. Chapter 2 of the Illinois Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities Code [405 ILCS 5] is designed to ensure that your rights are protected. These state laws, in addition to federal laws, protect your right to:

• Be treated with respect, dignity and regard for your privacy;
• Be free from abuse, neglect, and harm;
• Get mental health services in the least restrictive setting;
• Tell others your opinion about mental health services or any mental health center where you get care;
• Learn about your mental health services and how to get services;
• Get information on treatment options. You should be told in words that are easy to understand;
• Take part in decisions made about your health care. This includes the right to refuse treatment, except if the law requires it;
• Be free from any form of restraint or seclusion used as a means of coercion, discipline, convenience or retaliation;
• Ask for and get a copy of your medical records. You can ask that they be changed or corrected;
• Get interpreter services if you are deaf or hard of hearing;
• Have your provider make a reasonable effort to find an interpreter for you if you do not speak English;
• Be told if your provider stops providing services or has changes in services;
• Get medically necessary mental health care services according to federal law; and
• Be free to exercise any of the rights outlined above or in Chapter 2 of the Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities Code. Any negative impact upon your treatment by your mental health center that relates directly to the exercise of those rights may be subject to investigation as an instance of retaliation.

Contact the Guardianship and Advocacy Commission, Equip for Equality, Inc., or your attorney concerning any of these rights (see p. 44).
Responsibilities

Because you are a partner in your care, you also have certain responsibilities:

- Tell your treatment team if you do not understand or if you disagree with your service plan.
- Give your treatment team the information they need to give you good care.
- Come to your appointments on time. Call the office if you can not keep your appointment.
- Let your providers know if you change your phone number, mailing address, or move.

Confidentiality: Protected Health Information

The IDHS/DMH keeps some Protected Health Information (PHI). Your PHI may be used to give you good care, and for activities of payment. Your PHI may only be used in the following ways:

- Your PHI may be shared with those who are involved in providing your healthcare.
- For coordinating your care among providers, or between a provider and an insurance company.
- With health professionals who have given you services to pay claims.
- To look at how individuals use services so better care can be provided.
- When federal, state or local law requires it. Your PHI might be shared if the IDHS/DMH gets a court order or if your records are subpoenaed.
- To collect information about disease or injury to report it to a public health authority.
- In order to avoid a serious threat to health or safety, the IDHS/DMH may share your PHI with law enforcement or other persons who might prevent or reduce the threat of harm.

Confidentiality: Access to Your Own Mental Health Records

- Individuals age 12 and above, are entitled to inspect their own records.
- Access to records cannot be denied or limited even if a person refuses assistance offered from staff.
- Anyone may dispute information contained in their own record by submitting a written correction of information for the record.
Children and Youth: Rights and Confidentiality

Children and youth below the age of 18 who receive mental health services have unique and variable rights to confidentiality and other rights, including:

- For children under the age of 12, parents or guardians have the right to inspect and copy their children’s records;

- Any person who is 12 years of age or older can ask for and get outpatient counseling for up to five sessions of 45 minutes each without the notification or consent of his/her parent or guardian. The child’s mental health professional cannot notify the child’s parent or guardian without the child’s consent except where the program director believes it to be necessary and then only after the minor is informed in writing;

- Youth over the age of 12 are entitled to inspect and copy their own records. Help in interpreting the records shall be provided free of charge for youth under the age of 18;

- Parents or Guardians of youth age 12 to 18 may inspect and copy the records of the minor if the youth is informed and does not object and the mental health professional does not find that there are compelling reasons for denying the access. If the parents or guardians are denied access by either the youth or the mental health professional, the parents or guardians may seek a court order granting access.

- Parents or guardians of youth age 12 to 18 may always request and receive the following information concerning their child: current physical and mental condition, diagnosis, treatment needs, services provided, and services needed, including medication, if any.

- Youth who are 16 or older may receive inpatient services without parental notification or consent for a limited time.
CONCLUSION

We hope that this handbook provides hope and practical help to you on your recovery journey. Whether you are seeking services for the first time, learning about recovery, making choices in your treatment, wanting to give feedback about your care, trying to understand your rights as a person participating in mental health services, or looking for someone to talk to, the IDHS/DMH is here to serve you.

Science has shown that having hope plays an important role in a person’s recovery. We want you to know that you can recover and live life fully in the community. We are here to support you when you need us in that journey. May this handbook be a helpful guide to you along the way.
